Princess Doaa Bint Mohammad Ezzat has many diverse activities, locally and internationally.

She had her master's degree in Business Management, a master's degree in International Politics and now preparing for her PhD in Law.

Princess Doaa has always supported Scientific institutions, honoring many schools and university graduates in the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia.

Her Royal Highness Princess Doaa cares deeply about charities, she is the head of the female department of the Sanid Charity for Cancer Children, and a member of the AFTA "Saudi ADHD Society", she also is an effective contributor for many child supporting charities, treatments and rehabilitations for different categories.

Princess Doaa cares about attending educational and intellectual forums, and as an artist herself and for her love for fine arts; Princess Doaa has inaugurated many art galleries inside and out of Saudi Arabia.

More specifically, Her Royal Highness Princess Doaa has focused her attention on helping Saudi women to be seen and recognized for their education and their intellectualism through assembling and organizing diplomatic meetings, that involves ambassadors' wives and counselors residing within the Kingdom.

Princess Doaa has accepted and attended numerous invitations to conferences and forums both locally and internationally that advocate peace, development of education, child care and enrichment and preservation of culture which was the subject of the Sixth Global Forum for Ancient Cities in Morocco she attended last June.

Through her main initiatives, Her Royal Highness Princess Doaa has become a role model for women and an advocate for child support, spreading love and peace amongst people in the world.
